Urinary catheter securement and CAUTI prevention

Powerful CAUTI
prevention,
advanced foley
securement

Designed for catheter-associated urinary tract infections (CAUTI) prevention and maximum patient comfort

The recommendation for appropriate management of indwelling catheters is to 'properly secure indwelling catheters after insertion to prevent movement and urethral traction'.

The Centurion Foley Anchor and Universal Securement Anchor are excellent solutions for securing Foley catheters without the need for uncomfortable, hard plastic devices.

- Easy to apply and remove
- Fit virtually any size catheter
- Universal Securement Anchor is adjustable and fits various outer diameters
- Stay firmly in place, allowing for easy patient movement
- Help prevent catheter movement and dislodgement, reducing risks and patient discomfort

- Meet recommendations for the prevention of CAUTI
- Comfortable and safe for extended wear
- Made with patient-friendly, long-lasting adhesive

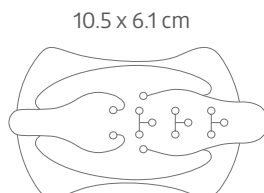

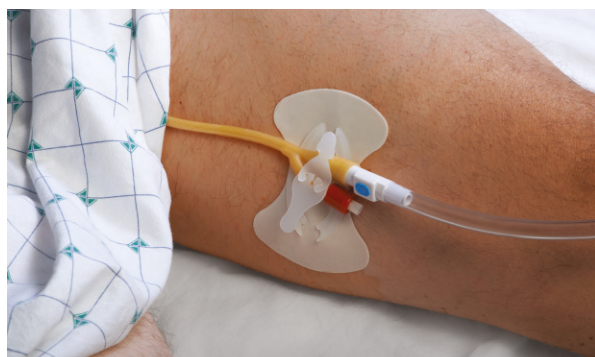

'The Foley Anchor made the catheter tube feel secure and in place, eliminating the uncomfortable feeling of it shifting and pulling down when moving around during the day and moving around while sleeping'.

- Surgical patient

Anchoring your patient's Foley Catheter is a key part of CAUTI prevention.

The Centurion Foley Anchor and Universal Securement Anchor are securement devices that remove frustration and help prevent CAUTI when attempting to keep indwelling catheters in place.

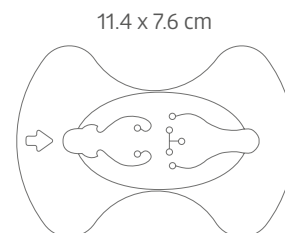

Comfortable securement, simplified.
